Re: Executive Orders 14219 and 14267 – Rescission of OCC Preemption Regulations

Dear Acting Comptroller Hood:

On behalf of the Conference of State Bank Supervisors 1 (“CSBS”), I request that the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (“OCC”) promptly rescind its rules governing National Bank Act preemption (“preemption regulations”) in order to comply with Executive Orders (“EO”) 14219 2 and 14267 3 issued by President Trump regarding unlawful regulations and anti-competitive regulatory barriers.

Upon rescinding the current preemption regulations, CSBS requests that the OCC swiftly propose rules to implement the National Bank Act’s preemption standard and process 4 in a manner consistent with the unambiguous directives provided by Congress and affirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court.

I. OCC Preemption Regulations and EO 14219

On Feb. 19, 2025, President Trump signed EO 14219, which directs federal agency heads to, among other things, rescind unlawful regulations. Section 2(a)(iii) of EO 14219 specifically identifies “regulations that are based on anything other than the best reading of the underlying statutory authority” as those that should be prioritized for rescission. 5 The OCC’s preemption regulations must be rescinded to comply with Section 2(a)(iii) since they ignore both the plain language of, and Congressional intent embodied in, Section 5136C of the National Bank Act (“Section 5136C”). 6 The OCC’s preemption regulations are clearly unlawful, inconsistent with Supreme Court rulings, 7 and contrary to the public interest. 8

a. OCC Preemption Regulations Ignore the Text and Intent of the National Bank Act

In the wake of the financial crisis, Congress sought to curtail the OCC’s longstanding pattern and practice of broadly preempting state consumer financial laws for national banks. In particular, wholesale preemption of state mortgage laws had been a key contributor to the mortgage crisis that morphed into a global financial crisis. To address the risks that OCC preemption posed to consumers and financial stability, Congress enacted Section 5136C to explicitly “undo [the] broader standards adopted by rules, orders, and interpretations issued by the OCC in 2004” 9 by “revis[ing] the standard the OCC will use to preempt State consumer protection laws.” 10

To limit the OCC’s preemption powers, Congress established an unambiguous standard as to when the OCC may preempt a state consumer financial law. Specifically, a state consumer financial law is preempted only if:

...in accordance with the legal standard for preemption in the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in Barnett Bank of Marion County, N.A. v. Nelson, Florida Insurance Commissioner, et al., 517 U.S. 25 (1996), the State consumer financial law prevents or significantly interferes with the exercise by the national bank of its powers[.] 11

In addition to directing the OCC to use the Barnett Bank “prevents or significantly interferes” standard, Congress established a clear process that the OCC must follow to preempt a state consumer financial law. The OCC must make preemption determinations according to the Barnett Bank standard on a case-by-case basis. 12

Notwithstanding the National Bank Act and clear Congressional intent, the OCC subsequently finalized preemption regulations in 2011 that wholly ignored the clear directive in Section 5136C. 13 Instead of creating a process where preemption is considered on a case-by-case basis 14 subject to a substantial evidence requirement that must be made on the record, 15 the OCC simply repromulgated its already broad preemptive regulations from 2004. The OCC’s 2011 preemption rule preserved the status quo that Congress went to great lengths to reverse only a year before in Section 5136C. By reissuing the 2004 regulations that preempted more than 30 broad categories of state laws, 16 the OCC ignored both the plain language and best reading of the National Bank Act.

b. Proper Preemption Regulations Would Negate Costly, Unnecessary Litigation

In the absence of regulations that faithfully implement the preemption provisions of the National Bank Act, the Supreme Court nonetheless reaffirmed Section 5136C’s preemption standard and process in Cantero v. Bank of America, N.A. The Court ruled that preempting a state consumer financial law requires “a practical assessment of the nature and degree of interference caused by a state law” 17 through a “nuanced comparative analysis.” 18

The preemption standard and accompanying process outlined in the National Bank Act are designed to implement the “nuanced comparative analysis” by requiring a case-by-case decision that includes substantial evidence on the record. Unfortunately, courts have had to step in to perform this process because, as noted by Supreme Court Justice Gorsuch, the OCC has not put the statutorily-mandated framework in place. 19
Rescinding the current preemption regulations and crafting a process that complies with the plain meaning of the law will enable banks and regulators to move forward from an issue that Congress thought it had settled legislatively 15 years ago.

II. OCC Preemption Regulations and EO 14267

On April 9, 2025, President Trump signed EO 14267, which requires agency heads to eliminate regulations that are anti-competitive, including those that “have the effect of limiting competition between competing entities.” 20 The OCC’s preemption regulations limit competition by granting national banks and federal thrifts a competitive advantage over similarly situated state-chartered banks and state-licensed nonbank firms.

Indeed, by insulating national banks from broad categories of state consumer financial laws, in contravention of the law and process outlined in Section 5136C, the OCC has sought to thwart competition by attracting additional national bank charters at the expense of state bank charters. This is not idle speculation, but a fact acknowledged by former Comptroller John Hawke during Congressional testimony. 21 The OCC provides national banks with a competitive advantage via broad preemption not authorized by the National Bank Act and not available to similarly situated state-chartered banks. Thus, the OCC’s preemption regulations also violate the directive in EO 14267 that “[f]ederal regulations should not predetermine economic winners and losers.” 22

Conclusion

Executive Orders 14219 and 14267 compel the OCC to promptly rescind its preemption regulations codified through its 2011 final rule. These regulations are in clear contravention of the plain language and intent of 12 U.S.C. § 25b. Moreover, the preemption regulations are anti-competitive by inappropriately shielding national banks from state consumer financial laws that apply to similarly situated state-chartered banks and state-licensed nonbank firms.

Sincerely,

Brandon Milhorn

President and CEO
